

SAMPLE CLIMATE STORYTELLING WORKSHOP ICEBREAKERS

MY CLIMATE STORY

Icebreakers put participants at ease. They can be especially helpful with younger audiences, like schoolchildren, but they tend to work on everyone! Choose your questions to break the ice to match your audience, your location, the season, recent news events, etc. For older audiences, you might begin with a general question and then connect it to local climate impacts.

- Use a reaction or blink your camera off if you've seen a magnolia or tulip in bloom this week!
- Blink your camera on/off if you've spent 3 or more hours outside in the past week!
- What is a food you love that you can't have in every season?
- Add a word that describes what you want our energy future to look like.
- Do you think the recent weather is related to climate change? How can you find out?
