The Future People are curious about what the world had been like in 2023 as they found the door open to the past. They open the door and peck in and want to go in. In 2023 the world will see buildings and parks where people can sit. The pollutants start to go around the environment but there still is beautiful nature. People enjoy going out and playing in playgrounds and beaches.

The Future World is dark because of the pollution and building blocks in the sky. As pollution and buildings grow, nature begins to fade away. The future generation’s emotions have changed; they feel sad and happy that once people went outside to enjoy nature.
